

HISTORY

2015 OTIS VINEYARD CABERNET SAUVIGNON

WINE OVERVIEW

Planted by Otis Harlan in 1957, the Otis Vineyard Cabernet Sauvignon is the oldest planting of the varietal in Washington State. Located in a cooler section of the Yakima Valley, Otis Vineyard produces an elegant interpretation of the varietal.

On the nose, the wine shows ripe plum, black currant, and spice. These characteristics carry through on the palate with a medium-weight body, chalky tannins, and bright acidity. This wine will age beautifully for years to come.

The 2015 vintage was a near-perfect growing season in the Willamette Valley, creating concentrated wines with complex layers and bright acidity. The fruit experienced native fermentation before aging in French oak barrels for 18-months. Only 30% of the oak used was new, allowing the fruit from this unique site to shine.
